With respect to the question of the passage of the Dardanelles, which Great Britain has also raised, it is said here that both the British and Russian diplomats hold the view that this does not demand the immediate attention which the Malacca incident requires. It is pointed out here that the Russian position generally is as follows:

What the Treaties Provide.

What the Trenties Provide.

The treaties regarding the Dardanelles prohibit the passage of the straits by warships. Russia has no intention of violating this provision, and has not asked Turkey to do so. But the treaties do not forbid ships from traversing the straits with arms and munitions. Turkey or any other power has nothing to say consequently about the armsment of ships after their passage through the straits. Russia holds that not a word in the treaties forbids action such as taken by the St. Petersburg and Smolenske.

What Russia Dezires.

Russia, it is clearly made known at the Foreign office, desires that the whole subject shall be treated in the most friendly spirit, believing that thereby a solution will be reached satisfactory to

In reply to Great Britain's representations regarding the passage of the Dar-danelles by the Russian volunteer fleet, the Turkish Government disclaims all responsibility, invisting that the St. Pe-tersburg and Smolenek passed in the capacity of merchant ships.

America Is Interested.

There is reason to believe that Great Britain is exchanging views with other powers regarding the operations of the olunteer fleet steamers, and the hardships thereby inflicted on neutral com-merce, or to which it is liable. The State department at Washington par-ticularly has been kept informed of the developments in the matter. It is said in a responsible quarter that the State department is giving special attention to the legal aspect of the question of the selzure of contraband and it is thought Secretary Hay may consider that the danger which menaces Amerian commerce passing through the Red ea is sufficient to warrant the issue of general declaration respecting the attitude of America.

This would be welcomed by the Foreign-office here, which believes the prin-ciples actuating America are those it is spriving to uphold. Germany also, it is believed here, is in a mood to wel-come some international declaration tending to increase the liberty of neu-tral commerce.

BOUGHT PEACHES, BUT GOT POTATOES

Never! Never again will a certain ast side family buy fruit of a huckster without examining the goods. The vow was taken after a certain transaction in peaches. J. F. Kent, who tells the story, said vesterday:

"A peddler came to the house the other day and wanted to sell a basket of peaches at a ridiculously low price In the market the basket would have been worth at least 35 cents and this fellow asked only 15. My wife thought he must have stolen them to be able to offer such a bargain and did not want to encourage petit largery by taking them. But we have some youngsters, a boy and two girls. They were hungry for peaches and urged my wife

When the huckster removed the tissue paper covering from a lus-cious sample of the fruit and banded it to one of the little girls my wife wavered. Seeing her indecision the man unwrapped another peach and handed it to the other little girl. It would not do, my wife thought, to have the boy disappointed, so she handed over the 15 cents and took the basket.

"The buckster burried out of the front gate as the boy reached for a peach. He tore off the covering and found, not a juicy peach, but a small, round potato. He tried another. It was also a potato. To make a long sides. also a potato. To make a long stors short he went through the basket and falled to find another peach. That b why hucksters are regarded with suspicion in my family.

Second Hottest Day.

Dr. Hyatt's promise of cooler weather yesterday was redeemed by the parrow markin of one degree, the maximum record having been % degrees, to Wednesday's %. The continued heat had its effect on business, the average citizen having displayed a tendency to seek a shady spot or a soda fountain in preference to accomplishing anything that required a degree of physical exertion. This tendency may explain the absence of heat prostrations, but Sajt Lakkers will prefer to believe that the superior quality of its rarified atmosphere is accountable for it. The weather office is accountable for it. weather office promises more notice

Game Was a Nerve Tingler. From the standpoint of a fan yesterday's ontest was one of the best of the seaon. A good article of baseball was handed out and the game from start to finish was full of those nerve-racking situations when a safe hit means victory. Four different times Reilly's braves had the bases well occupied with nobody out. Each time Tozier and his teammates steadied and retired the Indians before any damage had been done.

Five of the Elders' tallies were made in the sixth inning. Singles by Weed, Gimlin, Clark and Bruyette, an error by Howlett and a base on balls did the business. From this time on Hogg settled down and the Saints second no more.

How Spokane Scored.

The disastrous session for the locals was the fifth, when Reilly's followers secured four safe ones. These were unfortunately grouped and netted but two runs. In the sixth an error, a sacrifice and a single drew two more. The remaining tally came two more. The remaining tally came e third inning when Murdock scored logg's single after smashing out a bagger. Two Indians Injured. Rockenfield was hit on the arm by a pitched ball in the first inning and compelled to retire in favor of Howlett. Portland, 3; Tacoma, 5.

PORTLAND, Or. July 21—The game today between Portland and Tacoma came to a sensational conclusion when after playing a losing game for eight innings, Tacoma found Hastings in the ninth and pounded him out of the box. There, who replaced him, was unable to get into form in season to stop the ruin-getting. St. Vrain was by no means at his best and the fielding of the Tacoma team was ragged in places. Campbell, Portland's third baseman, was injured in the sixth and Steelman finished the game for him. Shea took Steelman's place behind the bar. Attendance, 2000. Score. R. H. E.
